Online Course Evaluations

Course Evaluations FAQs

Sawyer Business School has been conducting online course evaluations for the Online MBA since 2004 and more recently expanded it to the online Undergraduate courses.

The Office of Technology Management delivers the online course evaluation instrument using a combination of survey software and the Blackboard learning management system. The surveys are stored and administered via a secure process.

The online course evaluation are managed and administered by Ana Perez, Assistant Director of MBA Online Program and Online Learning.

We understand that confidentiality is one of the primary concerns when students complete an online course evaluation. Be assured that student identity and survey answers are completely protected. Our online course evaluation system does not track any information that would identify students or their responses. The online course evaluation system uses current technology to ensure the security of the data, the anonymity of the participants, and the confidentiality of the results.

Our course evaluations are fully branded and customizable for every program. Course evaluation data is collected and securely transmitted to the appropriate authority in the Dean's Office for analysis.

Please contact us for questions about the online course evaluation system.

For information about the course evaluation data please contact the Sawyer Business School Dean's Office.